

1W/562565K(039)

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

UNA-UK

The people's agenda

CONTRIBUTORS INCLUDE

Ban Ki-moon | Ela Bhatt | Ngaire Woods
Thomas G. Weiss | Naureen Chowdhury Fink
Helen Clark | Phumzile Mlambo-Ngcuka
Claire Melamed | Mahmoud Mohieldin
Mukhisa Kituyi | Jamie Drummond
Jonathan Glennie | Matshidiso Moeti

Contents

FOREWORD

- 8 The people's agenda
By Ban Ki-moon, Secretary-General, United Nations

INTRODUCTION

- 10 A new era for development
By Jeremy Greenstock and Natalie Samarasinghe

MEETING THE DEMAND

- 12 Development re-imagined
Achieving the SDGs requires recognition of the inter-relatedness of the goals, the need for data and new sources of development finance. By Mahmoud Mohieldin
- 15 Breaking the cycle of poverty
What lessons can the international community take forward to ensure that the new SDGs and their targets become a reality? By Richard Jolly
- 18 Grassroots solutions
The most powerful tools to fight poverty and inequality often come from the poor and marginalised themselves. By Ela Bhatt

- 22 End of the line for malnutrition?
The scourge of malnutrition – in all its forms – affects all countries to some degree. With the SDGs we have the chance to eradicate this complex, human-made problem once and for all. By José Graziano da Silva
- 26 Gender equality as the means and the end
The SDGs will not be achieved without establishing global equality for women. While governments are making progress, much remains to be done. By Phumzile Mlambo-Ngcuka
- 28 Investing in health
In Africa, achieving the SDG of healthy lives and wellbeing for all will require a sustained commitment by governments to ensure adequate funding for health services. By Matshidiso Moeti
- 32 Prioritising mental health
Its inclusion in the SDGs placed mental health firmly on the global agenda. But where will investment be found? By Jessica Mackenzie
- 34 Displacement and development
The fate of displaced people and the achievement of the SDGs are closely intertwined. It is vital that those implementing Agenda 2030 address the needs of refugees. By Leisha Beardmore

38 Promoting inclusive growth for healthy economies

Economic growth will only be sustainable in the long term if it is based on equity and inclusivity.

By Jennifer Blanke and Gemma Corrigan

44 Building effective institutions

Strong institutions are considered to be the essential foundation for the SDGs. Why have past attempts at institution-building proven so difficult?

By Arthur Mellors and Andrew Rathmell

48 Development and countering violent extremism

How can the post-2015 development agenda work in tandem with another pressing global problem, that of dealing with violent extremism?

By Naureen Chowdhury Fink and Rafia Bhulai

---

PARTNERS IN ACTION

---

52 Sharing the tools for development

If societies are to successfully achieve sustainable development, we need to usher in a new era of collaboration. By Helen Clark

56 Data for development

Is data generation and collection helping those communities most in need and, if not, what can be done to ensure it does? By Claire Melamed

60 Beneficiary engagement in the SDG era

Successful aid intervention requires the involvement of communities and others that benefit from aid in aid decisions. By Jonathan Glennie

64 Changing behaviour to achieve progress

Achieving the SDGs will require both individual citizens and wider communities to make meaningful, long-term changes to their behaviour. By Bronwyn Hayward

69 Why trade matters

If trade is to be an enabler of the kind of sustainable development that leaves no one behind, then the right conditions must be put in place. By Mukhisa Kituyi

74 Sustainable business

How can the private sector drive change towards a sustainable global economy? By Jonathan Ivelaw-Chapman

80 Bridging development goals and climate action

Achieving both the SDGs and action on climate change as agreed in Paris will need a new mindset that does not consider the attainment of one to be at the expense of the other. By Leo Horn-Phathanothai

86 South-South cooperation: new wine in old bottles?

Does development cooperation between countries of the Global South offer a paradigm shift from the traditional North-South model? By Sanusha Naidu

---

IMPLEMENTATION

---

90 National policy, local delivery

How can we ensure that national governments enable the SDGs to be successfully implemented at a local level? By David Satterthwaite

94 From vision to reality: the journey of the SDGs

A step-by-step guide for states on the processes and decisions required to implement the 2030 Agenda. By Isabelle Younane

98 Holding leaders to account

Nations have pledged to eradicate poverty and protect the planet but citizens must ensure that governments stick to their promises. By Leo Williams

102 Funding the SDGs

Key to making the SDGs a reality will be identifying – and then generating – the level and type of financing required across the international community. How can this best be achieved? By Guido Schmidt-Traub

106 Can tax regimes underpin the SDGs?

Generating the investment needed to realise the goals will rely less on traditional aid and more on countries' own ability to raise and utilise funds through their tax systems. By Ben Dickinson

RISKS

110 The forgotten minority

While headline figures on poverty reduction have made for impressive reading, the burden on those left behind has fallen heaviest on minorities and indigenous populations. By Mark Lattimer

114 Fragile development

The SDGs can only be achieved if the international community can improve its ability to assess fragile development situations. By Gary Milante

120 Peace and security for sustainable development

Conflict seems an ever-present fact of human existence. How can the international community ensure conflict does not derail the SDGs? By Michael Clarke

123 Atrocity prevention and the SDGs – a shared ambition

Improving knowledge and understanding of the role of development in preventing atrocities will bring benefits for both R2P and the SDGs. By Alexandra Buskie

125 In the shadow of conflict

As the world focuses on the epicentre of the conflict consuming Syria and Iraq, neighbouring areas, such as the Kurdistan Region in northern Iraq, are being stressed to breaking point. By Bayan Sami Abdul Rahman

128 Can cities help reduce inequality?

Through more intelligent design and use of urban spaces, can we move towards a situation where cities provide safe, prosperous and enjoyable places to live for all their inhabitants? By Richard Burdett

131 Understanding corruption

The SDGs recognise the importance of tackling corruption if their aims are to be realised. But with such a highly nuanced, persistent and pervasive problem, how can this be achieved? By Alina Rocha Menocal

134 From Sendai to Paris: risk-informed development

Lifting vulnerable communities out of poverty will require a shift in thinking away from managing climate-related and other disasters and towards addressing the underlying risks of development. By Jo Scheuer

138 Countering epidemics

The recent Ebola outbreak in West Africa showed the devastating effect of deadly epidemics. How can the international community build resilience to protect against future outbreaks? By Olawale Maiyegun

NEW DISCOURSE

142 Scaling global change campaigns

Is public support for the SDGs a given? How can the international community ensure that citizens around the world rally behind the goals? By Jamie Drummond

146 Cementing political accountability

How can communities ensure that their political decision-makers make good on commitments to turn the SDGs into reality? By Mark Goldring

149 People power

How can civil society gain more influence in the policy-making process for achieving a sustainable future?

By Nicholas Alipui, Emine Isciel and Naiara Costa

152 A UN fit for purpose?

Will the UN be able to deliver on the ambitious global development agenda set for the next 15 years, or does the world need a new breed of organisation to promote international cooperation?

By Stephen Browne and Thomas G. Weiss

156 Leading the change

The new UN Secretary-General will play a pivotal role in how the organisation tackles global challenges. How can the UN ensure it gets the right person for the job?

By Nina Hall and Ngairé Woods

159 About us

The role of UNA-UK

SPONSORED FEATURES

20 Protecting and supporting small, local producers
MAKRO

25 Palm oil smallholders: a sustainable development challenge
Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil

36 We have the right to hope
World Council of Churches

41 Ireland's agri-food journey
Bord Bia, the Irish Food Board

42 Reducing carbon in investments with low-carbon indices
STOXX

47 SDGs at risk - the corruption factor
International Anti-Corruption Academy

59 Spain's vision of low-carbon development
Ministerio Agricultura, Alimentación y Medio Ambiente

63 Advancing microfinance in Côte d'Ivoire - a human capital approach
African Management Services Company

79 Waste management and the circular economy
FISE Assoambiente

81 Strategic partnerships for a green economy
Greenwork

85 Topping up capital for development impact
Finance in Motion

89 Sustainability in practice
Hoteles City Express

97 Ensuring water and sanitation for all
ANEAS

100 Sowing the seeds of transformation
Korea International Cooperation Agency

104 Islamic finance in Africa
Islamic Corporation for the Development of the Private Sector

108 Corporate tax, inequality and international development
University of Bath

141 Freeing the world of infectious diseases
International Vaccine Institute